Introduction

The master's degree in communication and leadership provides a blended approach to organizational leadership. Leaders of Fortune 500 companies cite communication as their number one function, spending approximately 70-80 percent of their efforts communicating. A growing number of corporate and organizational CEOs point to organizational effectiveness, intellectual capital and people as the critical elements required to compete and survive in today's global economy. Effective leaders in the 21st century must have the ability to formulate and effectively communicate their ideas with conviction and power to inspire, motivate and persuade. Leaders must also empower, foster creativity, and promote collaboration and relationship building in order to effectively meet goals.

The MS in Communication and Leadership program is designed to address how communicative behaviors create and alter organizational processes and how organizations in which individuals interact affect communicative behaviors. Persuasion and other communication skills are strong predictors of performance, often more significant than both intelligence and personality traits. Courses provide insight into the complex relationship between leadership and communication in areas such as building and bridging networks of relationships, communicating expectations and goals, team building, motivating, and listening. The program blends functional knowledge and analytical skills with the ability to interact with others, understand and interpret behavior to communicate effectively. Organizational leaders persuade, motivate, communicate a shared vision and values, and create an environment that enables them to lead effectively.

The master's degree program in Communication and Leadership exists to meet the emerging need for a blended approach to organizational leadership. It provides persons working in the private, public and non-profit sectors with the opportunity to understand their strengths as leaders and build on these strengths. The multidisciplinary program is directed toward current and future professionals in any facet of organizational communication, organizational development, human resources or general management, management of not-for-profits, and integrated marketing communication. The program combines theory and practical experience where students directly apply their knowledge in partnerships with organizations. The MS in Communication and Leadership is uniquely positioned to make more effective and more humane leaders in the changing work environment.

Admission

Applicants for admission to the Communication and Leadership program may be accepted as matriculants (master's degree candidates) or as non-matriculants (graduate course credit students). In either instance, the same admission standards will apply. Prospective students must possess a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university, regardless of major field of study, and must present evidence of their qualifications to participate fully in a graduate level endeavor. The Admissions Committee evaluates applicants on the basis of academic records with a minimum undergraduate GPA 3.00, scores on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) or Graduate Management Admissions Test (GMAT), professional accomplishments and subjective appraisal of motivation and the likelihood of successful program completion.

To qualify for admission, the student needs the following:

The Admissions Committee recognizes that an applicant's background and experience may enhance the ability to succeed in this program. Those individuals who wish to have these experiences considered in the admission decision may submit letters of reference and/or information pertaining to such experience with the application form.

The Admissions Committee recognizes that some applicants may wish to begin the program prior to taking the GMAT or GRE. A program candidate whose GPA is 3.00 or higher may be admitted to the program as a provisionally accepted student for one academic semester. A student may take no more than nine semester hours of course work on a provisional basis. Candidates may also be accepted as a non-matriculating student eligible to complete nine credit hours of course work.
