OTT 501 eLearning and Instructional Design 3 Credits
Research and explore the concepts of the virtual classroom/office, including the design and delivery of online coursework and workplace training. Course concepts include synchronous and asynchronous learning systems, using the web for instruction, virtual communities, and online teaching and training tools. Current research in online teaching, training, and learning will be explored and participants will design an online course/training component in their field.

Offered: every spring, online only.